Our Four Favorite

Fall Staple Pieces

These pieces are our go to fall must-haves now and always.

Trends come and go, but the timeless fall staples in your closet will have your back season after season. Since times have changed, new pieces have made their way into the “essentials category”, but creating a modern, long-lasting wardrobe isn’t always about “out with the old and in with the new” instead it’s about adding current classics to your closet. The four pieces on this list will make getting ready in the fall easier than ever and will help you look put together, with minimal effort, for any occasion. From the gold hoops to the neutral coats and sweaters, these modern pieces will be a must have in your Fall 2020 wardrobe.

Neutral Sweaters

If you don’t own a neutral sweater your closet is missing a key piece, especially during the cold months of the year. Sweaters keep you cozy and they go with just about anything. Whether you want something casual and comfy or something tight and trendy, you’re bound to discover a sweater that matches your unique style. It’s all about the simple knit on a crisp day.

Gold Hoops

Gold hoops can truthfully transform any look. Throw them on with your neutral sweater and black jeans and bam, you instantly look polished and put together. Hoops are an easy way to add a simple, but noticeable detail to your look. They’re remarkably versatile and can be worn any season. The best part is, even if you put together an outfit in five minutes gold hoops can make it look like you put in way more effort than you actually did. sldnsa

Neutral Coats

Earlier we mentioned that neutral sweaters are a great staple piece for the fall, but we couldn’t help but add neutral coats to our list of fall staple pieces because outerwear can usually make or break an outfit. Neutral coats come back into style every autumn and winter. They are elegant yet functional and add a little something to your outfit while also keeping you warm. Even if you throw it on over a simple long sleeve and some mom jeans, a great piece of outerwear can add personality and style to any outfit.

Ankle Boots

The last piece on our list might not seem as important, but when you add an ankle boot to your collection you’ll soon realize that this item is key for the winter. The great thing about ankle boots is that they are versatile. They can work with any outfit you piece together, whether it involves leggings or a pair of trousers. Luckily ankle boots come in an overwhelming amount of different colors and designs, so it’s easy to find a bootie that matches your style.
